Family Holiday Party

“Oh the weather outside is frightful...” But our Holiday Party will be delightful! The snow has already made an appearance, so it must be time to get in the mood for that special magic of the holiday season.

Join us to celebrate with food, fun, and our Guest of Honor, Santa Claus!

We will have pizza, snacks, fun activities for everyone, and a chance to visit with Santa. We’d love to see you!

Danielle.plasse@pathlightgroup.org can take your reservations. The party is from 5:30-7:30 p.m. in our Eastworks building, in the first floor event space.

The Autism Collaborative of Berkshire County November Evening ACBC Meeting

Sarah Mitchell of Northwest Mutual presented a workshop on Financial Planning for the Future on November 7th. Sarah’s passion and commitment to helping families plan for the financial future of loved ones showed throughout her presentation. She had some very helpful information for families on the process of building a team of professionals to help families navigate the ins and outs of planning. The ACBC is committed to providing some evening events this year to accommodate working families and professionals. Please visit our Facebook page at https://www.facebook.com/Autism-Connections-Berkshire-285842931599582/?ref=settings for more information about upcoming meetings. Our next day time monthly meeting is scheduled for January 18, 2019 at the BCARC Training Room.

You can find out more about Sarah Mitchell’s presentation and other Autism Collaborative of Berkshire County events at https://www.facebook.com/Autism-Connections-Berkshire-285842931599582/?ref=settings.

ACBC is always looking for Spotlight Speakers. Spotlight Speakers are welcome to talk about their programs, topics of interest to the autism community, events, and/or initiatives that affect our families and individuals we work with. Please contact us at emailacbc@gmail.com if you are interested.

Festival of Trees

Autism Connections is proud to partner with the Berkshire Museum again this year for the Festival of Trees. This year the tree was decorated by our Adult Social Group led by Regina Mason. The group decided to showcase their hard work and dedication to their Puppet Show The Minstrel’s Journey.

The tree is decorated with the cast of characters from the play, all hand sewn by the group, and the set design serves as the beautiful tree skirt.

Bring your family to enjoy this Berkshire holiday tradition November 17 through January 6.

The 2018 Festival will feature more than 100 dazzling, decorated holiday trees, each one depicting a popular song. From hip-hop to doo-wop, blues and jazz to pop, country, and rock, can you guess the song titles from the decorations on each tree?

If you do make a visit to the museum, we’d love to see pictures! Take a pic with our tree and tag us on Facebook, Autism Connections Berkshire. We’d love to see your adventures!
Winter Survival Guide

We’ve already had the first snow fall of the season, and winter is making itself known! The changing seasons can be a challenging time for us all, and winter can often feel like the longest season.

Holidays, social engagements, and long snow days can bring challenges to all families, but they can be uniquely difficult for people with autism. The contrast between the bustle of holiday parties, family gatherings, gift shopping, decorating, and religious services, followed by the quieter winter days after the hustle of the holiday season can give anyone whiplash. Here’s a few tips to help you and your family navigate the transitions of the winter season.

The old New England saying “If you don’t like the weather, wait a minute” can make it difficult to prepare in advance for weather-related changes in routine and new clothing and safety expectations in snow, rain or cold weather. The seasonal change to heavier clothing can be challenging for those who have sensory sensitivities.

Many people with autism prefer the lighter touch of summer clothing, or have difficulty tolerating different fabric textures. For some children, it may help to start with putting that summer clothing away and out of sight so that it is no longer an option. For others, it’s easier to add layers – for example, if someone can only tolerate wearing short-sleeves, adding a sweatshirt or hoodie for colder days may be simpler than trying to change an entire wardrobe.

Be aware of barriers like buttons and zips that occur more frequently in winter clothing than summer wear – this may be frustrating for children who cannot express why.

Also consider what sensory sensitivities may influence your child’s reaction to wearing certain clothing – does the fabric make a subtle “swishing” sound that can be distracting, or is it a coarser texture than your child usually wears? Many struggle with wearing a winter coat, and it may be necessary to slowly desensitize your child to wearing it. Set a timer for a few seconds, and have your child practice wearing it for the minimum amount of time they can tolerate. It may just be a few seconds, or your child may only be able to tolerate trying on one sleeve at first. Reward your child with a favorite item or activity immediately after they practice wearing the coat, and slowly extend the amount of time until your child can tolerate wearing a coat for longer periods.

Consider buying a coat with a hood, if wearing a hat is also difficult.

It may be helpful to establish a “mantra” that can be used to consistently signal it’s time to get ready to go out. For example, “It’s cold outside. We wear our coats.”

Preparing for social gatherings unique to the season can also require preparation for your child – consider creating a social story, role playing what may happen, and talking to the hosts or guests at the event so that they are aware of your child’s needs.

Here’s a link to some additional pointers on navigating the holidays. This article mentions Asperger’s, but has relevant tips for all families: https://www.differentbrains.org/wp-content/uploads/2017/11/Spectrumly-Speaking-Holiday-Spectrumtacular-Handout-Different-Brains-Inc.pdf.

Once the holiday season is over, January and February can present different challenges – school closings or delays, or long days inside because of bad weather. The unexpected change in routine can be difficult for people with autism, and it can be useful to create a routine for those “expectedly unexpected” situations.

In the words of a parent

Ivy Rodriguez was looking for a way to keep her daughter dancing. She came to us to see if we could help and we were able to assist with her dance classes. Her daughter Anelisse and is thriving with involvement in an activity that she loves.

In Ivy's words...“This past year was great for Anelisse! She completed her 2nd year in elementary ballet; one year in level one and one year in level two. After a 2nd year in level two, she can go into intermediate!

She also completed her first year in hip hop. Hip hop has made her move her body in a different way that I think actually helped with the ballet moves and overall strengthening.

She's excited that she's more confident in the moves and it definitely showed during the recital. Her self esteem is high and I love she feels like she's part of a team especially when one of my biggest worries was her becoming a teen and adult and feeling left out/isolated.”

We wish Anelisse and Ivy the best of luck, and appreciate that they were willing to share their story. Do you have a story about your child's passion? Please let us know.

There are several websites that have social story templates for snow days or holidays, including Autism Speaks and http://www.iroqsea.org/social-stories. This site allows you to edit the text of the story and add your own photos.

Also consider making a list of activities (visual or written, depending on what works best for your child) and allowing them to choose. Being given options and the feeling of control may limit behavioral issues. Depending on your child’s needs, you may need to limit choices to two options. If your child has a lot of energy, it may be helpful to purchase a small indoor trampoline or swing to help them expel excess energy and give them sensory feedback.

Seasonal Affective Disorder (SAD) is an often-discussed form of depression this time of year, but it’s important to note that it can affect children, teens and adults with autism as well.

Symptoms include changes in appetite, sleep, and mood, and lack of enjoyment in activities, as well as difficulty concentrating, and leaden feeling in the arms and legs. If you suspect that your loved one is experiencing SAD, talk to their doctor.

Most important, but hardest to do, is to remember to take care of yourself during the winter. Often the winter is hard for caregivers and parents as well as people with autism, as it’s easier to become isolated.

Consider joining an online support group, but also schedule time to do something that helps you reset and is just about you - whether it’s binge watching your favorite show, reading a book, or taking five minutes to praise yourself on everything you’ve done that day. Parents deserve rewards too!

Trainings/Workshops

Autism Connections has a variety of trainings to offer upon request. We tailor our trainings to our audience, be they parents and caregivers, human service professionals, or teachers. Our trainings can also be adapted to all age ranges and ability levels.

In November, we were thrilled to offer our training on “The Hidden Curriculum” (about navigating the unspoken social rules our society lives by) to a group of dedicated teachers at Wahconah Regional High School in Dalton.

We also greatly enjoyed sharing our training on “Understanding and Responding to Challenging Behaviors” with pre-school teachers at Chicopee Child Development Center.

If you’d like to hear more about the trainings we have to offer, please contact Katie Drumm at Katie.drumm@pathlightgroup.org, 413-529-2428, x 111.

ARICA Workshop with Amy Weinstock

Autism Connections is offering a workshop with Amy Weinstock, Director of the Autism Insurance Resource Center. She will present on the ARICA law, and other insurance-funded autism-related supports.

ARICA stands for An Act Relative to Insurance Coverage for Autism which requires private health insurers in MA to provide coverage for the diagnosis and treatment of Autism Spectrum Disorder. Ms. Weinstock has been a strong advocate and resource for families navigating insurance-funded autism supports. Don’t miss this chance to hear from her directly! She will discuss autism insurance for families in Massachusetts, including: ARICA, MassHealth, including recent changes, eligibility, Premium Assistance, The Health Connector and covered treatments and how to access them.

A minimum of 15 participants are required for this training. Light refreshments will be provided.

The workshop is December 11 at the Palmer Library, from 5:30pm-7:30pm. To register, please call 413-529-2428 x115, or email Danielle.plasse@pathlightgroup.org.

ONLINE SUPPORT GROUPS

GROUP NAME | GROUP DESCRIPTION | DATES/TIMES
--- | --- | ---
Online Support Group for Parents of Teen Boys
This online support group will focus on topics of particular interest to parents of tween boys.
12:30 p.m.-2:00 p.m., $120
Before formal registration for the below groups, a 1-1 informational meeting with the facilitator is required. The purposes of the informational meetings are for you, the participant, and facilitator to get to know one another, to discuss the format of the group, and gain a sense of the needs and interests of the participants. This meeting can take place virtually via Skype, FaceTime or Zoom. Email events@aane.org, or call 617-393-3824 x 32 for more information and to schedule a meeting with the facilitator.
Save the date: Autism Conference!

If you are an educator, parent, caregiver, person with autism, professional, or anyone interested in autism, please save the date for our conference.

General Registration will open in January. We have new, interesting levels of sponsorship this year and an exciting new space for exhibitors.

Please contact joanne.lucey@pathlightgroup.org with any questions if you would like more information about sponsorships or exhibitor tables in the Exhibitor Showcase.

Happy Holidays from all of us at Autism Connections.

Thank you for sharing your lives with us.

A special thank you to the Berkshire Autism Initiative for their tireless support of Autism Connections.
